A description of the data:

The data would contain the restaurants located in Yonkers including the names and latitudes and longitude location of each restaurant. The data would be extracted using Foursquare API, and it would be used to solve the problem by having it modified and clustered to locate which region is optimal for having the most restaurants.